

The country's unprecedented leader in professional accounting education, the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Sri Lanka (CA Sri Lanka) will power the 2014 Future Minds Expo with a gold sponsorship.

In its capacity as one of the largest tertiary education providers, CA Sri Lanka currently enjoys a mammoth student base of 43,000 aspiring chartered accountants and has been associating closely with Future Minds.

This is the second year, CA Sri Lanka will power the national higher educational and career exhibition with a gold sponsorship.

This year's Future Minds expo will be held in Colombo from June 6th to 8th at BMICH, followed at the Kandy City Centre from June 14th to 15th, and finally at the Galle Town Hall on September 6th and 7th 2014.

CA Sri Lanka President Mr. Arjuna Herath disclosed that the Future Minds expo comes at an extremely pertinent juncture. "We recently launched a groundbreaking curriculum which aims to create a new breed of chartered accountants who can partner businesses with financial leadership. I believe the Future Minds exhibition will be an important platform to educate our future professionals on the importance of following a professional qualification which is not only globally recognized but is also far sighted, and which could probably be the best and most sought after qualification for the future business leader."

He noted that contrary to misconceptions, chartered accountants don't necessarily have to be from the commerce field. "CA Sri Lanka attracts probably the best and the brightest of students, and contrary to popular beliefs, our student population comprises of students who are from the Advanced Level commerce as well as non-commerce including science fields," Mr. Herath said.

He added that chartered accountants who have qualified from CA Sri Lanka continues to play an significant role in the corporate world as well as in the public sector, with some of the top public office positions including the position of Governor Central Bank and Auditor General being held by members of CA Sri Lanka.
