

Members of the Association of Chartered Certified Accountants (ACCA) will be exempted from four subjects when they follow the Master of Business Administration (MBA) from the prestigious University of Southern Queensland (USQ) now offered by the Business School of the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Sri Lanka (CA Sri Lanka).

With these four exemptions, students can now sit for only eight subjects instead of the required 12 subjects while studying for the MBA which has been recognised as one of Australia's top 20 programmes and complete the course within period of a one year to one and a half years.

With the exemptions, students will also have the opportunity of saving approximately Rs. 350,000/-, due to the reduced number of subjects they have to undertake to complete the MBA.

USQ is an international university of repute in distance learning and was the first accredited 'institution of best practice' for external higher education in Australia.

CA Sri Lanka President Mr. Sujeewa Rajapaksa said that since inception the Institute has taken every effort to provide accounting professionals with the best of qualifications, both recognised locally as well as globally.

The world renowned MBA programme offered at our Institute has been well received by top corporate professionals who have completed it, making it one of the most successful MBA programmes offered in the country," Mr. Rajapaksa noted.

He added that the Institute came into an alliance with USQ almost a decade back to ensure Sri Lankan professionals from both the accounting and non-accounting fields get the best of foreign qualifications right here in Sri Lanka.

According to him by later this year CA Sri Lanka will also have its new multi-storied office building complex completed, which will also house the CA Business School featuring modern infrastructure facilities for the benefit of its student.

“We are continuously striving to provide the best of facilities for all our members and students, and this new building is testament to our efforts as we work tirelessly to ensure that we are a body with a global standing providing the best to all our stakeholders,” Mr. Alwis noted.
